"which index works best?"

"why should the index work best?"

implications for empirical research

low discordance obtained on threshold graphs and uniform random graphs and high discordance can be artificially created

$\implies$ correlation analysis cannot be used to justify new indices

"why should the index work best?"

🙂